AI Overview

Electrical distribution boxes near North Korea typically range from $20 for small residential units to several hundred dollars for industrial or customized enclosures.

Pricing Overview

Residential Units: Standard single-phase or small three-phase distribution boxes generally cost $20–$100, depending on material (plastic or metal), number of circuits, and IP rating for water and dust resistance.

Commercial and Industrial Units: Larger, heavy-duty boxes with higher amperage capacity, multiple circuits, and advanced features such as smart monitoring or remote control can range from $150–$500 or more.

Custom or OEM Options: Manufacturers like SKKBO and BOXCO offer customized enclosures with specific dimensions, materials (ABS, PC, stainless steel), and IP66/67 waterproof ratings. Custom solutions typically require a detailed quote, but prices start around $100–$200 for mid-sized units.

Metal/Aluminum Enclosures: Durable, suitable for industrial or outdoor applications, often with higher IP ratings.
