

Price of PVC fiber optic patch cords in East Africa

AI Overview

PVC fiber optic patch cords in East Africa typically range from $5 to $30 per unit, depending on length, connector type, and quality.

Pricing Overview

The cost of PVC fiber optic patch cords varies based on several factors:

- Length: Standard lengths like 1m, 2m, or 3m affect the price linearly, with longer cords costing more. For example, a 3-meter LC-LC OS2 patch cord can range from $10 to $25 depending on quality and supplier.
- Connector Type: LC, SC, ST, and MPO connectors influence cost. High-precision connectors or multi-fiber MPO/MTP types are more expensive due to alignment and polishing requirements.
- Fiber Type: Single-mode (OS1/OS2) cords are generally slightly more expensive than multi-mode (OM1-OM4) cords due to lower attenuation and higher performance standards.
- Jacket Material: PVC jackets are standard and cost-effective, while LSZH or armored variants increase the price.
- Bulk Orders: Purchasing in bulk reduces the unit cost significantly, especially for OEM or project-based orders.

Local Suppliers in East Africa

- Instant Device (Kenya): Offers a wide range of fiber optic patch cords, cables, and accessories with local stock in Nairobi and delivery across East Africa.
- CTC Solutions (Kenya): Provides patch cords and pigtails for enterprise and ISP networks, with in-store and regional delivery options.

Practical Considerations

- Delivery and Availability: Local stock in Nairobi ensures faster delivery across East Africa, which can reduce lead times and shipping costs.
- Quality Assurance: Ensure cords meet industry standards for low signal loss and durability, especially for FTTH, GPON, or data center applications.
- Customization: Some suppliers offer pre-terminated or custom-labeled cords, which may add $30-$100 setup cost per batch but can be avoided in bulk orders.

In summary, PVC fiber optic patch cords in East Africa are generally affordable, with prices ranging from...
