

Price of Small-Sized Distribution Boxes

AI Overview

A small residential distribution box typically costs between $10 and $100, depending on material, size, and features. Price Range For home or small-scale use, distribution boxes are generally priced from $10 to $100 for basic plastic or metal units purchased at stores like Amazon or Home Depot . Simple plastic boxes are the most affordable, while metal enclosures, which offer better durability and protection, start around $20 and can go higher depending on size and weatherproofing . Factors Affecting Cost Material: Plastic is cheaper but less durable; steel or aluminum provides better protection and longevity . Internal Components: Boxes sold empty are cheaper, but adding circuit breakers, surge protectors, or busbars increases the price significantly . Installation: Professional installation for a standard residential box can range from $1,300 to $1,800, which often exceeds the cost of the box itself . Outdoor vs Indoor: Weather-resistant or outdoor-rated boxes carry a premium due to additional sealing and protective coatings . Customization and Features: Smart monitoring, digital displays, or integration with building management systems can increase upfront costs but may offer long-term energy savings . Summary For a small residential distribution box, expect to pay $10-$100 for the unit itself, with installation potentially adding over a thousand dollars. Choosing the right material, ensuring proper internal components, and considering whether the box will be indoors or outdoors are key to balancing cost and safety .
