

Price of fiber optic cable siding

AI Overview

Fiber optic cable costs typically range from $0.09 to $6 per foot ($0.30 to $20 per meter), depending on type, fiber count, and installation method. Typical Pricing The cost of fiber optic cable varies widely based on cable type, fiber count, and installation environment. For standard materials: Single-core FTTH drop cables: around $0.13 per foot High-count backbone cables (e.g., 288 fibers): up to $6 per foot Wholesale bulk purchases: $0.09 to $1.52 per foot Retail prices: $1 to $6 per foot, depending on specifications and connectors Single-mode fiber is generally cheaper per foot than multimode fiber, but it requires more expensive equipment for termination and testing . Outdoor or armored cables designed for harsh environments can add 20–50% to the base cost due to protective jackets and compliance requirements . Installation Considerations The total cost of fiber optic siding includes not just the cable but also installation labor, trenching, conduit, splicing, and connectors: Aerial installation is usually less expensive than underground or direct-buried runs. Underground installation incurs higher costs due to trenching, permits, and protective conduits . Connector type and pre-terminated assemblies can increase costs, especially for high-count cables . For commercial projects with 100–200 network drops, total installation costs can range from $15,000 to $30,000, depending on project complexity and distance . Factors Affecting Price Fiber count and cable construction: More fibers and armored or loose-tube designs increase cost. Jacket material and environmental rating: Outdoor-rated PE or UV-resistant jackets cost more than indoor PVC or LSZH jackets. Project volume and lead time: Bulk orders reduce per-foot cost, while custom or niche specifications increase it. Regional and shipping costs: Local labor rates, permits, and shipping can significantly affect total expenses . Summary For fiber optic cable siding, expect material costs from $0.09 to $6 per foot, with additional installation and labor costs depending on the method an...
