

Taihe Electric High and Low Voltage Distribution Box

AI Overview

Taihe Electric provides high and low voltage distribution boxes designed for reliable power distribution, protection, and control in industrial and utility applications. Company Overview Taihe Electric Power Group, based in Tai'an, Shandong, China, is a national high-tech enterprise specializing in the design, production, and sale of high-voltage and low-voltage power equipment. Established in 2000, the company has over 400 employees and a registered capital of 20 million yuan, with a total output value of 560 million yuan in 2023. Taihe Electric serves a wide range of sectors, including state grid, railways, communication, aviation, and new energy power generation. High Voltage Distribution Boxes Taihe Electric's high voltage distribution boxes are engineered for power distribution, current measurement, short-circuit protection, pre-charging, charge/discharge control, and emergency stop functions. Key features include: Quick-connect connectors for fast maintenance Secondary insulation and low-induction bus design to reduce electromagnetic interference Compact, centralized distribution for convenient wiring and maintenance These boxes are compatible with SF6 circuit breakers and gas-insulated switchgear (GIS), supporting voltage levels up to 126kV and beyond. They are widely used in substations, industrial plants, and high-voltage transmission systems. Low Voltage Distribution Boxes Low voltage distribution boxes from Taihe Electric are designed for safe and efficient power distribution in industrial and commercial settings. They provide: Overcurrent and short-circuit protection Manual and automatic control options Modular design for easy installation and maintenance These boxes are suitable for state grid, railway, and industrial applications, ensuring reliable operation and compliance with national and international standards.
