AI Overview

Cable trays in Iran are sold through manufacturers, distributors, specialized agents, and direct industrial supply channels, with strategies tailored to product type and industry demand.

- 1. Direct Sales from Manufacturers Many Iranian companies produce cable trays and related accessories, offering direct sales to industrial clients. For example, Armin Steel Connection Company supplies galvanized steel cable trays and accessories to sectors like oil, gas, petrochemicals, and pharmaceuticals, providing both standard and custom solutions. Manufacturers often highlight product specifications such as tray thickness, width, length, and coating type (hot-dip or cold galvanization), which can influence buyer decisions.
- 2. Distribution Networks Distributors play a key role in reaching smaller clients or regional markets. Companies like PersianGostar act as distributors of cable trays in various shapes and materials, providing easier access for local contractors and electrical suppliers. Distributors often maintain stock, handle logistics, and offer customer support, making them essential for widespread market coverage.
- 3. Specialized Agents and Brand Representation Some companies operate as official agents for international brands, offering advanced cable tray systems and technical support. For instance, Eagle Barq represents SPINA/SCHIAVETTI TEKNO in Iran, providing design, production, testing, and certification services, along with post-sales technical assistance. This method is effective for high-end or customized cable tray solutions where technical expertise is valued.
- 4. Online and Industrial Marketplaces Cable trays are also sold through online platforms and industrial directories, such as OilAndGasDirectory.com, which lists suppliers like Abhar Cable, Iran's largest manufacturer of high-quality electrical cables and trays. Online listings allow buyers to compare products, request quotes, and contact suppliers directly, expanding reach beyond local markets.
